In Praise of Cities

We are social creatures. It is our human instinct to come together to share wisdom and stories, but it was not until the groups of people got large enough that we defined the commencement of civilization. That's what civilization means; living in cities.

To live together in large numbers we have had to learn to a few things; to share space, to share resources, to cooperate, to specialise, to listen. We have had to modify our human nature to create an Urban Nature.

Our Urban Nature is sophisticated, collaborative, open, considerate, sustainable and efficient. At its finest it can also be elegant, stylish and highly functional. Urban Nature furniture is a contemporary expression of us at our best.
